A B G Discussion
W Be Twins
He Come and Jumped
Ken Wins, Allah Loses

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

A discussion of the means of relief of American unemployed and how to go about it. There seems to be more talk about relieving American unemployed, than there was during the Armenians and Russians in a war that we entered. We did start this war.

Borah, in a savagely eloquent speech that might serve President some day if he is careful, tells of a mother who feeds her children eating "grease and other material that you would not feed a dog."

Borah would have an army if necessary, but, he says, let us stay here until the starving child and woman are taken care of by the government, whose duty it is to protect its suffering citizens."

• • •

THE FIGHT is on between President Hoover and his active adherents.

Yesterday the President issued a statement saying that the government should not do anything [illegible], meaning the Red Cross has failed.

The people should rely on self-help, says President Hoover, quoting the words of Grover Cleveland under similar circumstances: "It is for the people support the government; the government should not support the people."

Senator Borah might and probably will reply, "That was not said to the starving Armenians, or Russians, or the European nations spending ten thousand millions of money to continue murdering each other."

• • •

SENATOR BORAH says the Red Cross is strong enough to carry on the job. The government could easily do it more cheaply and efficiently, by employing men in the army and navy.

Congress means to do anything it does want and should send relief directly to them, regardless of the terrible word "dole," the money would be spent in stores, would help pay clerks' wages, and keep business going.

However, that is for the wise men at Washington to decide.

MR. CYRUS H. K. CURTIS' confidential paper prints this in big type: "Birth of twins expected by Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt." A few years ago such a positive announcement would have been impossible. But to say in shocking words how the X-ray looks through intervening tissue and reveals two little skeletons, with crooked legs, tiny little feet that will never know hard pavements, and there is no doubt about [illegible] going to be twins.

These little children will be the great-grandchildren, in the sixth generation, of Commodore Vanderbilt, founder of the family, who was able to make a good new idea, and profit from rowing a boat to the end of a railroad, and some other things.

How quickly generations pass. Even in the case of the very rich, not very poor! Both classes [illegible] the poor to make a fortune, the rich because so difficult to marry them.

BANK LEADER SEES DANGER IN CASH BONUS

National Association Head Says Business Recovery Would Be Menaced.

UPHOLDS MELLON STAND

Tells Congressmen Proposed Substitute Plans Would Be Less Dangerous.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association, testified today that cashing veterans' service certificates would make hopes of gradual business recovery seem "ill founded."

Before the house ways and means committee, the banker reiterated his belief the "nation is now headed back toward economic recovery."

"However," he added, "if this bonus plan payment is to eventuate, it would seem that those hopes are ill-founded."

Stephenson termed the nation's present condition "one of the greatest business depressions of its history" and attributed it to "economic surprises."

Explains Attitude

Upholding Secretary Mellon's opposition to cash redemption of the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, he said he spoke not primarily for the banks or for any particular interests, "but essentially for the greater welfare of all of our people."

Enactment of plans to pay cash for certificates now, he warned, might in the future hinder enactment of "other really deserving bills for the relief of the World war veterans."

"The nation has suffered enough economic adversity already, he declared.

Stephenson went on to give the opinion, however, that two substitutes for full cash redemption of soldiers' certificates could be executed "without serious injury to business."

Proposed Substitutes

Representative Hadley, Republican of Washington, asked what would result from taking $784,000,000 of the treasury reserve for application toward retirement of the certificates, and floating a billion dollar bond issue for part payment.

"It would not be so disastrous," was the answer.

"You think that would have less effect on the market?" Hadley questioned.

"If arrangements for that could be made so as to spread it over some months," the banker answered, "I believe it could be done without serious injury."

Representative Crowther, Republican of New York, asked what would come of giving veterans four per cent. treasury bonds—convertible at any time—for their certificates. Again Stephenson said it could be done "without serious injury."

Thornton Cooke, president of the Columbia Banks of Kansas City, disagreed with Stephenson, he opposed all cash payment plans.

Asked what he thought of issuing bonds to replace certificates, Cooke declared "Shylocks and curb stone brokers" would profit, and in order to help 200,000 or 300,000 unemployed veterans, "we would put cash into the hands of two or three million who do not need it."

Meanwhile, Senator Harrison said Democratic members of senate finance committee would meet before Saturday to discuss pending cash payment proposals.

GANDHI SENDS BID FOR END OF STRIFE

Definite Peace Offer Goes to Britain; Forecasts Victory for India.

By International News Service.

BOMBAY, Feb. 4 — Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the campaign of civil disobedience against British rule in India, today make a definite offer to seek peace with the British government.

India's holy man wrote a letter to Lord Irwin, the viceroy, urging him to institute an inquiry into six specific instances of alleged police excesses against Indian Nationalists since the start of the civil disobedience campaign.

Gandhi asserted in the latter that he would interpret the viceroy's favorable reply to his request as a genuine gesture of peace, and in that case he would exert all his influence to persude the all-India congress, representing the Nationalists, to accept the offer of the British government of eventual qualified dominion status for India.

TILBY SMITH GETS RETRIAL

Supreme Court Rules in Favor of Ohioan Accused in Wife Slaying.

FINDS ERROR IN TRIAL

Says Judge Should Have Passed on Sanity of Accused.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4 — Tilby Smith, of Ashtabula, convicted of slaying his wife in an alleged ambush plot, was granted a new trial today by the Ohio supreme court. This tribunal affirmed the court of appeals, which also had ordered a new trial. Both the higher courts found that the trial judge erred in refusing to grant Smith a trial without a jury, as he had requested.

Smith was indicted with Mrs. Lowther. They were charged with arranging a plot whereby Smith took his wife in an automobile past an agreed spot on a road outside Ashtabula. As they drove by the place a shot was fired from ambush. Mrs. Lowther was alleged to have been the trigger woman.

Construing the new criminal code with relation to first degree murder cases where the question of the accused sanity is raised, the court held that it is incumbent on the trial judge to first pass upon the sanity of the accused or have that done by a jury. If, by either method, he is found sane, the accused then has the right to elect whether he shall be tried by the court or by a jury, and his election must be carried out.

If the accused is found to be insane, either by the court or the jury, then he is ordered committed to the hospital for the criminal insane.

As the question of Smith's sanity had been raised the trial court was required, under the law, to first have that question properly disposed of before bringing him to trial, the decision stated. This was not done.

OPPOSE NEW PLAN

Ohio Legislature Shows Little Favor for Redistricting Proposal.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4—Plans proposed by the Cleveland Citizens committee for redistricting Ohio to provide for two additional congressmen under the new census failed to get much favor among members of the legislature following its introduction yesterday by Senator L. L. Marshall, Republican of Cleveland.

Virtually every legislator has ideas of his own as to how the state should be divided to give 24 congressmen and few coincide with the districts as proposed by the Cleveland group.

Then several of the members have congressional aspirations and those are vitally interested in having districts established that will give them a chance of achieving their ambitions.

The realignment proposed would rearrange virtually every district.

Building is Another Unit In $750,000 City Plan

Two Hundred and Twenty-Four Pupils Have Been Transferred to New School from Forest Lawn and Vernon; Capacity Is 400 Students; Cost Is $113,313.

Opening of the new elementary school building last week at Indiana and Pennsylvania avenues marks the completion of another unit in the Marion school board's $750,000 building program launched two years ago.

The first phase of the program was completed last summer when four elementary schools, Mark, North Main, Glenwood and Pearl, were enlarged at a total cost of approximately $225,000.

Another School Under Way

A new junior high school building, which will cost about $325,000, is being constructed at Bellefontaine avenue and Jonesboro road and probably will be ready for occupancy next fall when the 1931-32 term begins, according to Superintendent of Schools George A. Bowman.

The latter building is the last unit of the present $750,000 program, although in the future a new high school building probably will be erected in the Durfee addition, the site for which already has been purchased with part of the $750,000 which was voted as a bond issue two years ago.

The new elementary building opened last week cost a total of $113,313.06, according to figures in Bowman's office. This is lower than the estimate made when the building first was planned.

General construction cost $64,837.50; electrical work, $5,783; plumbing and sewers, $9,254; heating and ventilating, $14,800; architectural and engineering services, $6,230.47; surety bonds and insurance, $1,454.14; landscaping, $1,461.30; equipment, $4,974; additional

Chicago Cripple Rescued After Torture by Gang

By United Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—George Wittbrod, 34, a crippled salesman, was rescued today from a rough coffin in which he was placed by seven men who kidnaped him, beat him, left him hang for an hour from a cross in a cemetery and then buried him alive.

A farmer passing the cemetery before daybreak heard stifled moans and called police. Wittbrod's coffin was found in a deep ditch, where he had been tossed after a night of torture unequalled in the history of Chicago crime. He was suffering from cold, exposure, the beating and fright.

Officials to whom Wittbrod confided that he often had been the object of "practical" jokes by neighborhood hoodlums, because of his affliction could hardly believe such an attack as this had been intended as a "joke."

Wittbrod said he knew the names of six of the seven kidnapers and police began a hunt for them

FEAR NINE PERISH IN FALL OF PLANE

British Royal Air Force Craft Goes Down in Plymouth Sound.

By The Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 4—Nine men in the crew of a Royal Air force seaplane were feared lost today when the ship went into a dive while maneuvering over Plymouth sound, struck the water with great force and was wrecked by an explosion.

As she struck she heeled over on one side and sank immediately. When rescuers went out in small boats they picked up two officers and one of the crew, all injured. Commander Tucker, Flying Officer Wood and seven enlisted men were missing.

Divers recovered one of the bodies this afternoon. The cause of the accident was not immediately determined.

7 ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY IN CRASH

Two Cars Collide at Intersection of Delaware Road and Boulevard.

Seven persons escaped with minor bruises and cuts when two machines came together at the intersection of Harding Memorial boulevard and the Delaware pike, yesterday at 5 p. m. The two cars, driven by A. M. Miller of 283 Hane avenue and Herman Lynn of 145 West Pleasant street are badly damaged, but only two of the occupants, Mrs. J. W. Clemens of 263 Thew avenue and Miss Mary Dewey, 18, of Delaware, were injured enough to require hospital attention. They were taken to City hospital in the W. C. Boyd ambulance.

The touring car driven by Mr. Lynn in which his wife and Miss Dewey were riding, was going south on the Delaware pike. The sedan driven by Miller, going west on the boulevard, struck the Lynn machine broadside. Glass from a broken windshield cut Miss Dewey's forehead in several places, and Mrs. Clemens, who was riding with the Millers, was badly bruised. Billy Miller, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, received a cut on his hand.

The Miller car was taken to the Haberman Chevrolet garage.

CAMPBELL MAY MAKE SPEED TRIAL TODAY

Poor Visibility Prevents Official Assault on Record Yesterday.

By The Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4 Weather conditions today held in the balance plans of Captain Malcolm Campbell, British race car driver, to make an official attack upon the world's automobile speed record of 231 an hour.

The 46-year-old veteran of the roaring road hoped conditions, which yesterday made an official trial impossible, would permit a record attempt at low tide, 3 p. m. (Marion time).

Campbell's anxiety over the condition of his motor, at first believed damaged when the car slipped out of gear while traveling at an unofficial speed he estimated at 265 miles an hour yesterday, was allayed after mechanics made a thorough inspection.

A stronger spring was installed on the top gear to hold it in place.

Despite a strong wind and poor visibility, yesterday's exhibition was run over the nine-mile course at an official speed of 194 miles an hour.

Robber Takes Money but Lodge Symbol Saves Watch

An unknown Negro, holding up the C. E. Curtis funeral home at 267 East Center street last night, took $8 from the safe, but permitted Mr. Curtis to keep his watch after noticing the timepiece bore a Masonic emblem.

Either through regard for the Masonic order, or through fear that the watch could easily be identified, the Negro returned the watch to Mr. Curtis, saying "I don't want it." He also left some change found in the safe.

The holdup occurred at 9 p. m. as Mr. Curtis was locking the safe for the night.

"Don't close it yet," were the first words of the Negro, who entered the building undetected and slipped into the room where the safe is located.

The man held one hand in his pocket. Mr. Curtis could not tell whether the man was armed.

WILEY FUNERAL ON THURSDAY

G. A. R. RITUAL TO BE USED

Body May Be Viewed at Curtis Mortuary Until Hour Before Services.

Last respects will be paid Charles Wiley, commander of Cooper Post, No. 117, Grand Army of the Republic, in funeral services Thursday at 2 p. m. at Epworth M. E. church. Commander Wiley, who for six years had held the high office in the post and for many years preceding had held various other offices in the G. A. R., died yesterday at 2:15 p. m. at City hospital, following a stroke of apoplexy.

Commander Wiley was stricken while seated in a chair in the editorial rooms of The Star yesterday morning. He died at City hospital four hours later. He had called to the newspaper office to give an account of a meeting of Cooper Post on the preceding afternoon.

Lived Here 40 Years

He and Mrs. Wiley lived in Marion nearly 40 years. Their home was at 148 East Church street. The commander was a familiar figure in all patriotic parades and at all services in which the "boys" of the G. A. R. participated.

Commander Wiley was in the Civil war from Feb. 19, 1864, until he was discharged for disability on March 4, 1865. His right hand had been permanently injured in the battle of Spottsylvania Court House.

Locomotive Wrecked as Dynamite Caps Explode in Utah Crash.

By The Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 4 —A powder truck and a passenger train collided here yesterday, blasting two men to death. Another was killed by steam. Twenty passengers were injured.

W. E. James, 43, injured fireman of the Denver, Rio Grande Western local broken up by the detonation of the truck's load of 300,000 dynamite caps, told investigators today he believed a heavy fog obscured the driver's vision.

The blast killed George W. Begaman, 50, of Eureka, Utah, the driver, and his companion, James Prinsen, 56, director of the Western Powder company. Ben F. Rugg, 69, of Ogden, Utah, the engineer, was scalded fatally. The beheaded train ran about half a mile and then was derailed by crumpling of the front trucks.

The blast wrecked the engine and shattered windows in the train and in surrounding buildings. It was heard for more than half a mile.

QUAKE TOLL MOUNTS TO 400

Accurate Figures Impossible as Preliminary Damage Surveys Are Made.

HARBOR IS TRANSFORMED

New Zealand Residents Sleep on Seashore, Fearing To Reenter Homes.

By The Associated Press

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 4— Preliminary estimates of the death toll at Napier and Hastings jumped to 400 today when surveys of the damage caused by yesterday's earthquake and fire had only begun.

Eye witnesses reported it was impossible to give any accurate figure at present, but agreed there were at least 300 dead in Napier and 100 in Hastings. The number of injured at Napier and Hastings was estimated at upward of 1,000.

Fears Realized

Fears prompted by scattered reports from the stricken area were more than realized in information collected from refugees arriving here today.

Survivors said the quake wrecked nearly all the stone buildings in Napier and that the fire, fanned by a breeze coming in from the sea, swept inland, destroying everything in its path. Napier was a shambles. Both the injured and dead were laid in the streets.

Napier families slept last night wrapped in rugs on the seashore, afraid to venture back to their old shelters. Even the waterline was changed. The bed of the harbor was raised 18 feet and places formerly covered by deep water were dried up.

HONEYMOON IS ENDED BY DOUBLE MURDER

Divorced Man Shoots Former Wife and Newly Wedded Husband.

By The Associated Press.

SALAMANCA, N. Y., Feb. 4— The honeymoon of less than a week of Wesley Dieter, 42, and Mrs. Vivian King Dieter, 30, was brought to a tragic end in a farmhouse near here last night.

A charge of buckshot, fired through a window while the bride was sitting on the knee of her husband, critically wounded her, and another charge fired at close range as Dieter rushed to the porch killed him.

Sheriff Frank A. Annis and a hastily formed posse stalked the woods in the snow and early this morning came upon Darwin King, 35, former husband of Mrs. Dieter, hiding in an abandoned barn. The sheriff called upon the man to surrender.

"When we got no response we entered with revolvers drawn and flashlights playing around the old structure," Annis said. "We saw King cowering in a corner, too terror-stricken to talk. He gave no show of resistance." Annis said King readily admitted he did the shooting.

Mrs. Dieter obtained a divorce from King nine months ago and was married to Dieter last Thursday.

PROHIBITION POST GOES TO CHAS. H. SEARS

Selection of State Commissioner Last of White's Major Appointments.

REPLACES L. L. FARIS

Former Canning Industry Head and Party Leader in Ross County.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4—Charles H. Sears of Chillicothe was appointed state prohibition commissioner by Governor White today in place of L. L. Faris, Lynchburg banker who declined the appointment.

Sears has been an active Democrat in Ross county. He was a candidate for county recorder at the November election but was nosed out. The governor pointed out, in a statement announcing the appointment, that he considers Sears to have made an excellent showing in a very strongly Republican county.

Former Industrial Head

The appointee devoted a considerable part of his life to the canning business. He was at one time secretary of the Sears-Nichols Canning company and formerly was president of the Ohio Canners association. He was graduated from the University of Kansas where he studied law.

Filling the prohibition commissioner's office was the governor's last task in the way of major appointments. The appointee's name was to be presented to the state senate for confirmation this afternoon.

No Irregularities Found

Faris refused the directorship in a letter to the governor last Saturday. The chief executive was about to ask the senate to confirm him more than a week ago when charges were made that he had been asked to resign as secretary of the state civil service commission under former Governor Cox.

The governor made an investigation and in accepting Faris' decision, said he did so with regret because he had found no evidence of financial irregularities in the commission's affairs when Faris was secretary.

PRES. HOOVER COOL TOWARD COMPROMISE

Fears of Extra Session Revived as Relief Bill Deadlock Continues.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—Compromise negotiations on the congressional relief deadlock slowed down today after President Hoover gave a cool reception to proposals for settlement suggested by senate Republican leaders. Fears of an extra session were revived at the capitol as Senators Watson of Indiana and McNary of Oregon, the Republican chieftains, returned from the White House empty handed. Neither Watson nor McNary would discuss the talk after the White House breakfast parley.

They went to the President with the compromise suggested to the senate yesterday by Senator Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, on the $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund, which Mr. Hoover and the house Republicans have refused to accept.

The Harrison proposal was that a federal fund be made available to be spent only in the event that charitable organizations found it impossible to administer relief.

The Mississippian put it forward with the contention that the responsibility for the extra session would be upon the Republicans if the stand against any compromise was insisted upon.

Despite the gloom of Senators Watson and McNary as they left the White House, however, there were still signs of a break in the tense situation.

WELL-KNOWN MAN PRAISES DIAPEPSIN FOR STOMACH ILLS

"My work as a commercial photographer keeps me on a strain," says J. Walter Ingraham, 1001 21st St., Des Moines, Iowa.

LAST NIGHT at the THEATERS

"INSPIRATION," GARBO'S LATEST IS HERE

INSPIRATION!

That's Greta Garbo in her latest picture, "Inspiration" which opened last night at the Palace theater.

With a modern background laid in a Paris art colony, the picture has for its theme the sacrifice of Miss Garbo as Yvonne for her lover, Robert Montgomery.

Garbo is characteristic Garbo fashion plays the "inspiration" of a group of artists until she discovers her true "love" in Montgomery, a young student studying for the consulate. Montgomery, of course, is unaware of her past history and learns after one of her millionaire "lovers" pays an unexpected call to her apartment.

Just what would a man do under the circumstances? Montgomery does just that. He leaves her and in a short time his engagement to his childhood sweetheart, Joan Marsh, is announced. It ends with Montgomery returning to Miss Garbo and she in turn, rather than wreck his future, leaves to marry the man who went to prison for her.

Lewis Stone and John Miljan also have prominent parts in the picture. Stone plays the part of an elderly soul-mate of chorus girls while Miljan is a sculptor. Marjorie Rambeau, Judith Vosselli, Beryl Mercer, Edwin Maxwell, Zelda Sears, Karen Morley and Gwen Lee. M. R. M.

MERIDAN, Wis.—A person working in a noisy room may use 20 per cent more energy than one in a quiet room, said Dr. M. N. Pitz, city health officer, here recently Noise is causing a terrific economic loss and a waste in human energy and efficiency, the doctor said. He pointed out that in recent memory tests, answers were delayed eight per cat in a noisy room, and a typist has been able to increase her work five per cent in a quiet room.

WITH EDNA B. DUTTON

THE King's road, now called King street represented quality to the folks in the little Georgian town and "across the tracks" lived the other folks. On King street the quality folks played whist, the women enjoyed their gardening were deeply interested in the home affairs of their neighbors and humored their rather aging husbands, the men enjoyed a nip winked knowingly at one another when the conversation brought to light the mis-doings of some male member of the set and the young people grew up to obey their parents and for the most part do as they were told

At least some of them did as they were told, among them Julia de Graffenried whose younger sister Marietta had no difficulty in getting the best of everything because she was "threatened with consumption"

But instead of succumbing to the dread malady she only grew prettier and more healthy and in due time set out to capture and successfully win Carey Gordon whom Julia loved Julia keeps up her interest in her friends as they marry and rear their families but through it all seems somewhat detached, and the reader feels hopeful that something will happen to lift her from her monotonous life After the death of her mother Julia conducts the home just as her mother had done and she goes on entertaining her mother's friends The one person who openly confesses his love for her, Jo Breckenridge whom she refuses to have anything to do with gets a job on the street car and eventually marries the daughter of the village seamstress, much to the dismay of his uncle's friends

Just as life is becoming almost unbearable Tom Tobin arrives in town and apparently is interested in Julia In the meantime Marietta's daughter is almost a young woman, Sally's son a young man, a country club is built, the World war is ended, prohibition is a law and the younger generation takes the situation in hand It is left to Carey Gordon to tell his sister-in-law that his daughter and Tom Tobin have announced their engagement and once again the younger sister is spared any uncomfortable situations

"A Dog of Flanders" for Children's Reading

AND who hasn't wept over "A Dog of Flanders," by De La Ramee, that beautifully written story of Nello and Patrasche? Both were of the same age but Nello was a little boy who had only his aged grandfather to care for him and Patrasche was a great, big, understanding dog who loved and protected them in gratitude for a few kind words spoken when he was left to die by the roadside by a cruel master One hopes that little Nello was happy in death for his life-long wish was gratified when he saw Rubens' paintings and perhaps Patrasche's days were numbered, but one can not help but have wished for a happier ending to the story

The volume is published by Beckley-Cardy Co., in a most attractive jacket, the print is large and fast, but far from least are some well drawn and colorful illustrations. The combination makes a delightful book for a child.

Other recent publications by this company are a book of quotations and proverbs in which the author, Jessie E Logan has chosen to call "Goodly Company and which contain crisp quotations on ambition, art, books charity, cheerfulness, curtesy, diligence duty, education, friendship and other civic and moral virtues and a delightful children's book 'Read It Yourself Stories by Harris A Edwards The former is an ideal book for classroom work while the latter includes fascinating stories which children may read for themselves The latter volume is illustrated in gay colorings by Ludwig and Regina

Reviewer Discusses "The Dry Decade"

PROHIBITION is probably the most explosive subject in America according to a reviewer who seems to have read something on the subject "But if Charmes Merz New York editorial writer and author of "The Great American Bandwagon" is dry or wet, he keeps it admirably suppressed in "The Dry Decade," he opines

His bok is an unprejudiced impartial history of national prohibition right up to the report of the Wickersham committee Merz tries to give both sides of the picture of prohibition. He begins by recounting the building up of bone-dry sentiment. The drys, he finds, have always been better organized than the wets. The records of raids and corruption and hi-jacking, of public disregard of the law, of "indifference in state legislatures" of "congressional neutrality" the whole record, in brief, has been summarized.

• • •

"At the end of 1930," Merz writes, "five possible alternatives to the existing situation has been proposed.' Briefly, there were a larger public compliance with the law, better enforcement, nullification, modification, or repeal of the law and restoration of the problem to the states"

Ibanez Novel Listed for Early Release

"THE Phantom with Wings of Gold" is by Vincente Blasco-Ibanez and is listed among Dutton's new novels for spring publication. The book is a brilliant performance in which the author presents a carnival of luxurious and reckless living over which the spirit of gambling presides. The scene is Monte Carlo, where gambling love and drink enmesh the daring and the unwary, and where Jasmine, a young girl maddened by the fear of poverty, marries 'the silver king" darling of Monte Carlo ladies

REFORMED BEATEN BY EPWORTH 30-25

TRINITY BAPTIST FIVE IS EASY VICTOR OVER CHRISTIAN 2 QUINTET

Christian No. 1 Team Romps Over United Brethren Outfit 51-24.

EPWORTH M. E. basketeers retained their third place deadlock with Christian No. 1 in the Y-Church league by defeating the First Reformed outfit last night on the Y floor 30 to 25. Trinity Baptist was winner over Christian No. 2 five 33 to 12, to go into a tie with the United Brethren for sixth place. The United Brethren were beaten by the co-holders of third place, Christian No. 1. The Christians won 51 to 24.

Epworth surprised the followers of the league by not starting the elongated Zig Snyder at the center post. Snyder gave way at the last moment to Partridge. Snyder had been figured to be about the margin of victory for the Methodists.

A Good Battle

The Reformed team gave Epworth a hard run for the money in the first three periods, leading 21 to 19 at the three-quarter point. In the final frame the Methodists came through with several buckets in quick succession to win the game. Pete Howison, Reformed pivot man, was high scorer with 11 points.

Trinity Baptist and Central Christian No. 1 turned their contests with Christian No. 2 and United Brethren into track meets. The Baptists smothered the No. 2 Christians under a barrage of baskets, winning the game in easy fashion, 33 to 12. Wainfor of the Baptists was high scorer with 10 points. Christians No. 1 romped all over the U. B. five, handing the Brethren their worst beating of the season, 51 to 24. Johnnie Rife of the winners was high scorer with 14 markers. Johnnie Gillis trailed closely with 12.

Intermediate Scores

In the Intermediate league the Central Christians defeated Forest Lawn 35 to 5, Epworth won from First Reformed 15 to 11, Calvary defeated Fite Memorial 29 to 10

SPORT PUNCH

by KARL R. McELROY

THE college presidents are at it again and it looks like it is going to take more than a long count to end the latest spectre poking its evil nose into this lily-white amateur sport of college football.

We just get over the terrible shock of proselyting charges when it is revealed that this same game of football is being overemphasized. It seems to be the only sport able to pay its own way by drawing thousands of persons into the large stadia scattered throughout the nation. In fact it pays the way for practically all other sports on the many college programs. That's the terrible part about the thing.

Of course John Q Public has nothing to say in the mater. He can only foot the bills and make unheard demands to see old Alma Mater represented by winning teams. So the boys go on waging verbal battles looking for a method to regulate things. As the old saying goes "There ought to be a law . . . "

* * *

SPEAKING of regulating things. State Senator Joe Ackerman of Cleveland throws a plan at the Ohio legislature which he claims will save taxpayers a half million dollars a year. He proposed a salaried boxing commission and a tax on promoting clubs.

This regulating things seems to be one of Joe's pets. His latest bill is the third he has introduced seeking to control professional sports and adding a tax. The baseball boys raised an awful yell and beat the first one. His second dropped baseball from the list but it was considered class legislation. Now it's boxing alone.

To me it seems that professional sports are bad enough without bringing politics into the racket. As far as the half-million additional revenue it would produce, it merely would be added to the price of admission. The fact that the law is said to have some chance of passing should give promoters of the game some worry.

N. C. O. Cage Race to Enter Second Half Friday Night

BATTLE FOR SECOND POST TO CONTINUE; ASHLAND LEAD SAFE

Harding Travels to Mansfield; Hilltoppers to Bucyrus; Galion Visits Shelby.

ASHLAND High school still having a strangle hold on first place in the circuit, the North Central Ohio league will enter the second half of the season Friday night with the battle for second place occupying the majority of interest.

Galion will trek to Shelby in an effort to hang up another victory over the Shelby Whippets. The winner of this conflict will assume sole possession of second place while the loser will be virtually eliminated from consideration for the title. Shelby dropped the first round game to the Orangemen as the latter put on a spirited attack in the last period the final score being 32 to 26.

Shelby has been improving of late while Galion has been going none too good with the result that the Whippets will enter the fray slight favorites to win.

Harding to Mansfield

Harding will pack up and make a jaunt into the hostile territory of Mansfield in an effort to even up a 13-10 beating handed the Presidents by the Tygers in the opening league game of the season.

Both teams have improved a lot since they first met but Harding apparently has developed into a slightly stronger aggregation than the Tyger crew. The intense natural rivalry between the two may have something to do with who wins the game. This early in the week the Presidents appear to be the favorites but by game time it may be a different story.

Tough for Bucyrus

Bucyrus, the most consistent loser in the circuit this season apparently is doomed to another beating Friday night as the Redmen tackle the league-leading Ashlanders on the Bucyrus court. The Hilltoppers did not show the strength last week they demonstrated in first semester games but they won't have to be so strong to beat Bucyrus. The Redmen have been in an unexplained rut all season and there is little probability of their snapping out of it this Friday.

MAJOR LEAGUES TO USE "DEADER" BALL

Inflated Batting Averages Expected To Get Setback Next Season.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Major league batsmen who slugged 1,566 balls over the fences or into the bleachers last season, will have a new and "deader" ball to swing at this year.

Both the National and American leagues have decided that the home run barrage has gone far enough and a change in the ball's physical aspects is the result.

In the National league, the ball will have a thicker cover and heavier stitches. In the American league, the cover will be the same but the stitches will be heavier.

Not only will these changes take some of the liveliness out of the ball, major league officials confidently expect, but also will give the pitchers a better grip on the ball and thereby increase their effectiveness.

Hampered continuously by all sorts of restrictions, pitchers have complained for several years that the smoothness of the ball's cover has made it extremely difficult to control.

The changes are not drastic enough for any radical decrease in hitting. Officials of both leagues do believe, however, that the changed ball will result in greater pitching efficiency, a decrease in the number of "trick" home runs and a slump in the inflated batting averages of the last few years.

Last season, for instance, ten players in the majors hit 35 home runs or more. Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs led both leagues with 56 and Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees was runner-up with 49.

All told the National league hit 892 home runs; the American, 674.

SHOVEL Y-INDUS TO FACE TOUGH FOE IN DELAWARE ELECTRICS

Neighbor City Five Has Brilliant Record; Play at Shovel Tonight.

IF a record of forty consecutive victories means anything in basketball, the Shovel Y-Indus cage club will encounter tough sledding tonight on the Shovel court when it clashes with the Delaware Electrics. The Electricians have chalked up the imposing total of forty straight wins in two years of competition.

Among the players who will cavort under the banner of the Electricians are Red Evans of Delaware, an all-district guard in 1926 and '27, Joe Bowder of Bliss college and Bule, an outstanding performer of Otterbein college. Besides these men the personnel of the squad consists mainly of players of the Hyatts High school team, champions of the state class B division.

40 Wins in a Row

Although the Electrics have run up the huge total of forty consecutive wins they cannot claim a record any better than that of the local Y. M. C. A. aggregation. The Y team is champion of the Ohio Y .M. C. A. and also holds the state title of Y. M. C. A. clubs.

The game will be the twenty-seventh of the season for the Marion team. To date the Y champs have been victorious in 17 games and have been beaten nine times.

'Help Wanted' Signs Bring 130 Rookies to American

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—There will be no depression this year for the rookie hopefuls who seek bigger and better pay days in the ranks of the American league.

Help wanted signs dangling from every club office in the league, have attracted 130 applicants, all of them have been welcomed with open arms. Opportunity is everywhere for those able to deliver.

Although his team successfully captured the American league pennant for the second straight year and then added another world's championship, Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics wil take a dozen or more young pitchers to the White Elephants' training camp. He admits he needs better support for Bob Grove and George Earnshaw and opportunity will be plentiful.

Yanks Need Hurlers

Pitchers are the crying need of Joe McCarthy and his New York Yankees, too. Eight experienced hurlers wil itry out with the Yanks. Two young outfielders of great promise, Myril Hoag of Sacramento and Fred Walker of Jersey City, also will get a chance.

Detroit, seeking more punch at the bat, has grabbed off several fence busting outfielders.

Chicago and St. Louis needed infielders and went after them. The Browns picked up three young sensations from the Texas league, Burns, Storti and Lovey of Wichita Falls, and two good minor league catcher prospects. The White Sox, experimenting with good looknig youngsters, have a flock of young talent.

Indians Bolstered

Cleveland needed first string pitching aid and bought Fay Thomas of Sacramento and Craghead of Oakland, both with experience. The Indians also picked up two third basemen, Detore of New Orleans and Winegarner from El Dorado, one of whom may replace Joe Sewell. Washington had a great pitching staff last year but will try out a few youngsters and give three infielders a chance. Boston's cellar team last year, will take almost a score of rookies to Pensacola. Three of them—catcher Muddy Ruel, pitcher Wiley Moore and pitcher Johnny Brillheart—can hardly be classed as rookies as they have been up before.

Of the 130 recruits, many have been up before but most of them are new to the majors.

MIAMI SURPRISES BY BEATING WESLEYAN

Big Reds Force Game Into Two Overtime Periods To Win 29-28.

By International News Service

DELAWARE, O., Feb. 4—Ohio Wesleyan's championship-contending basketball team was nursing its first Buckeye conference defeat today following a turning of the tables by Miami's rejuvenated floor outfit. The score was 29 to 28.

The contest went into two overtime periods when the regular game ended in a tie at 25-all. The big reds succeeded in sinking two baskets during the extra 10 minutes while the best the Bishops could do was a basket and one free throw.

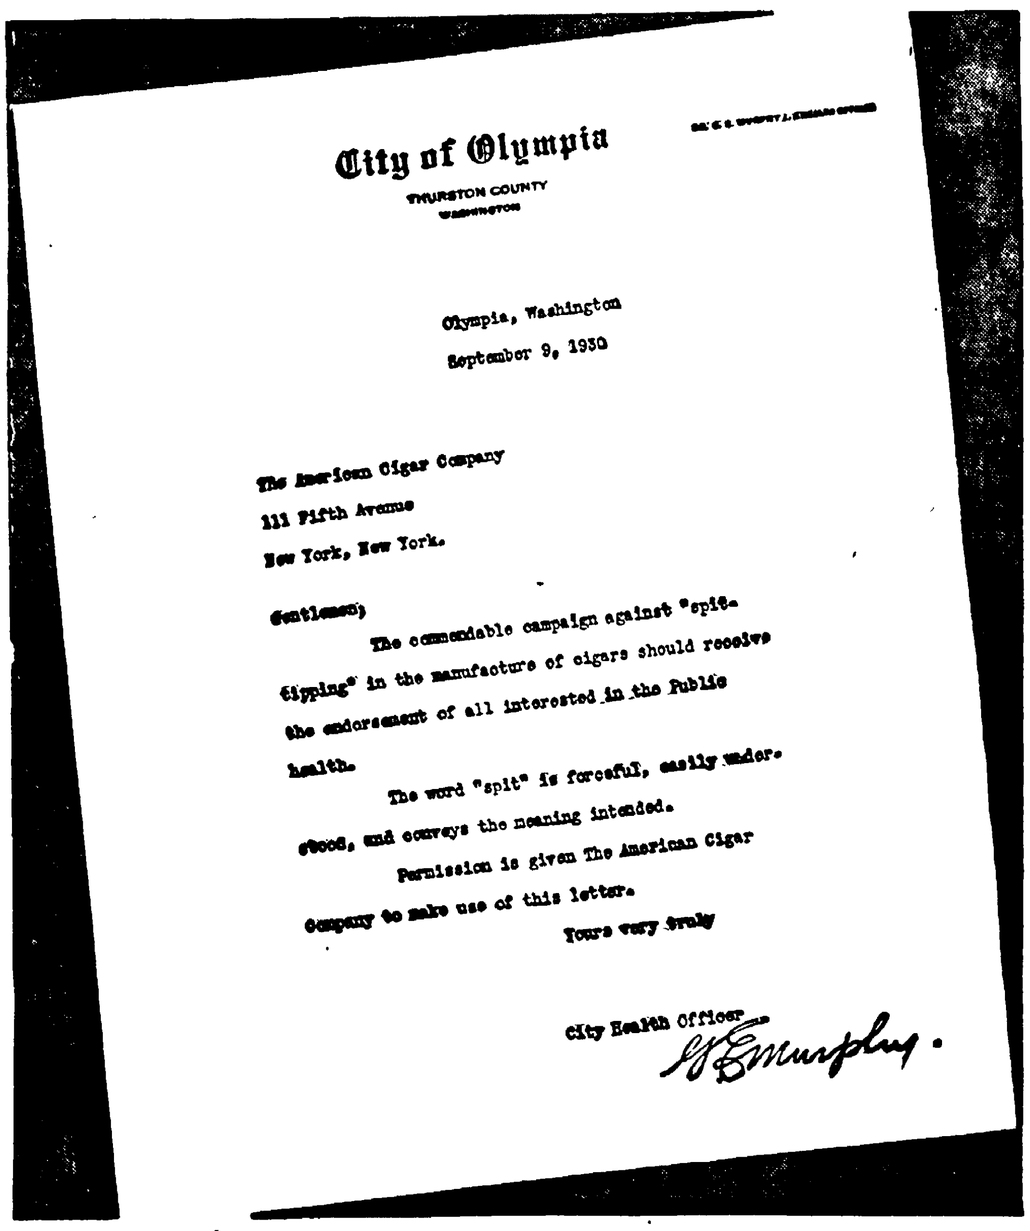
"The Word 'SPIT' ...Conveys the Meaning"
Says
DR. G. E. MURPHY
Health Officer, Olympia, Washington



City of Olympia
THURSTON COUNTY
WASHINGTON

Olympia, Washington
September 9, 1930

The American Cigar Company
111 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York.

Gentlemen:

The commendable campaign against "spit-tipping" in the manufacture of cigars should receive the endorsement of all interested in the Public health.

The word "spit" is forceful, easily understood, and conveys the meaning intended.

Permission is given The American Cigar Company to make use of this letter.

Yours very truly

City Health Officer
G E Murphy.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Murphy's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Murphy writes: "The... campaign against 'spit-tipping' in the manufacture of cigars should receive the endorsement of all interested in the Public health."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

STOCK MARKET TRADING SLOW

Bulls Attempt To Boost Prices, but Business Is Generally Dull.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK Feb 4—Bull cliques, grown impatient with the watchful waiting attitude of recent sessions, experimentally put forward some of their favorites in today's stock market, but the list as a whole remained logy.

Midweek business statistics failed to provide impetus to the advance, but were perhaps a little more favorable than otherwise. The bond market maintained its better tone of the previous session, and while the prospect of soldier bonus legislation still clouded the security outlook, the nervousness of the past week seemed largely to have subsided.

Merchandising shares made conspicuous headway, partly in response to Woolworth's January sales report. Showing a gain of 4½ per cent over the like period 1930. Woolworth, Sears, Montgomery Ward, and the best made gains of around a point, and Macy sold up more than 2. A few issues were pushed up 2 to 3, including American Tobacco, B. International Business Machines, Johns Manville, and Case. Several of the utilities rose a point or so, including American Water Works, American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light Consolidated Gas, and Stone & Webster. Rails were inclined to ease, particularly the Rock Island issues, reflecting deferment of common dividend action.

An unexpected development in the money market was the cancellation of the recent advance of ½ of one per cent in bankers acceptance rates, restored the shorter maturities to 1½@1¾ per cent. Other credit rates were stationary. The month-end settlements appear to have exerted virtually no influence.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Marion retail markets were unusually quiet this morning so far as price changes, or new produce is concerned. Practically the only activity was in the citrus fruit market.

The wholesale price of California oranges went up slightly, but not enough to affect the retail quotations today. Further increases may result in a readjustment of retail prices, which are now at bottom figures.

Oranges, grapefruit and tangerines offered here at five and six cents a pound following the arrival of a carload of this fruit in bulk, were temporarily off the market today.

MOISTURE NEED BOOSTS WHEAT

Official Government Reports React Favorably on Chicago Sales.

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO Feb 4—Official confirmation of need of moisture throughout the entire winter wheat area led to fresh upturns in grain prices today. Government reports suggested danger that a sharp fall in temperature would cause crop damage. Opening at ¼c off to ¼ up wheat afterward showed general gains. Corn started ½@¾ higher and subsequently held near the initial range.

Buyers of wheat based operations not only on persistent drouth advices and on fears of crop damage but also on the fact that Liverpool quotations represented wheat at only 45 cents a bushel in export countries. This was asserted to discount a tremendous depression in commodity levels the world over, and to afford ownership opportunities which might not be duplicated in a generation. Authoritative estimates of world import requirements of wheat were increased 32,000,000 bushels, chiefly in non-European countries, but with European consumer needs larger than hitherto.

Corn displayed more strength at times than did wheat. Domestic primary receipts of corn showed a further falling off. The total was 676,000 bushels, against 822,000 a week back, and 1,338,000 a year ago. Chicago arrivals, 112 cars, were larger than last week, but contrasted with 172 on the corresponding day of 1930. However, shipping demand was the smallest in a long time, with Ohio corn offered lower than Chicago's levels. Oats paralleled the action of other cereals. Provisions were easy, responsive to changes in hog values.

Gasoline and Auto Tax To Do All City Street Work

Service Director Harlow Says No Money Available This Year from General Fund for Improvements or New Construction; Income To Be About $60,000.

The city this year will depend entirely on the gasoline tax fund to finance street improvements, Service Director D. J. Harlow indicated today.

The estimated figure the city will receive from the state in gasoline and auto license tax money is $60,000. This money is available only for limited purposes including the maintenance of hard surfaced streets and the oiling of earth streets. An effort is being made to make this money available for street cleaning through action of the legislature.

A total of $10,700 carried over in the gasoline tax and auto license fund from last year will also be available for 1931 street work, Director Harlow said.

Determined To Cut Debt

The gasoline and auto license tax is one of three sources of revenue for street building and repair work. The other two are in appropriations of general tax money and through the sale of bonds to be taken up over a 10-year period.

Since the city was obliged to cut $82,781 from the 1931 budget in order to make the budget figure correspond with available money, the reason for eliminating street work from the budget is obvious. Director Harlow asked $3,800 in the budget for street work, but eliminated this item when the $82,781 cut was made.

Determined to reduce the city's bonded indebtedness, which is now taking approximately one-half of the annual tax income, officials have decided to hold bonded improvements to a minimum in 1931. As a result of this decision, there is little chance for extensive street work to be financed through this method.

Last year, six streets were built or resurfaced with funds obtained from note and bond sales. They are Main, Prospect, Silver and Commercial streets and Brightwood and Durfee drives.

Works on Program

Despite the lack of funds to carry out a comprehensive program, Director Harlow is busy laying out a program that will make the available gasoline tax money go as far as possible, he said.

A survey of the city is now under way to determine where improvements are most needed. A number of abrupt corners at interrections will be modified this year, in the continuation of a program started early in 1930. Considerable patch work will be done, as the construction of new streets is almost out of the question.

The oiling of earth streets and the manitenance of hard surfaced alleys can be taken care of with gasoline tax money, as the result of rulings made last year in the attorney general's office, according to Director Harlow. Since other money for this work is not available, the gasoline tax will finance the necessary alley and earth street work.

The $2,000 sidewalk raising program outlined by Director Harlow was cut exactly in half by the shortage of funds. With only $1,000 to work with, the director today pointed out that the department can do very little sidewalk work this year. Many deserving requests for sidewalk work must be refused this year because of the shortage, he said.

SEED LOANS MOST NEEDED BY FARMER

This Is Statement of Agriculture Secretary in Official Bulletin.

Of all the proposals for relief for farmers, in the opinion of I. S. Guthery of near LaRue, state director of agriculture, the loan of money for seed, feed and fertilizer and for fuel and oil for tractors stands out as the most timely, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus.

In an official circular, Guthery points out that under certain reasonable conditions, Ohio applicants may secure loans in varying amounts through the federal secretary of agriculture.

The largest amount which may be loaned, it is explained, is $600 to each individual, and the farmer obtaining such a loan in 1931, must give an absolute first lien on all crops growing or to be grown during the year. A tenant to secure a loan must present a waiver signed by the owner. This also applies if he has given a prior mortgage on his 1931 crop.

Payments may be made on the loans in installments.

2 ANSWER CALL

Respond to Altar Invitation at Wesley Revival.

Two persons responded to the altar call at the revival services last night at Wesley M. E. church. Rev. W. Martell George, pastor, spoke on "The Holy Spirit a Purifying Fire." Tonight he will preach on "Come with Us and We Will Do Thee Good." The Woman's Home Missionary society will attend in a body tonight. Last night Rev. George said:

"The voice of God is so sharp that it goes to the very center of one's heart in the condemnation of sin. A person can't quit sin but if they will take the Lord as their Saviour He can take the habit of sin away—with the purifying fire.

"One can clean up the outside with soap and water but it takes the fire of the Holy Ghost to pierce the heart and burn out the sin. When you have the fire on the inside it illuminates the outside and radiates to all the world."

NIGHT COUGHING

Quick and Safe Way To Stop It!

Whatever it is due to— cold, catarrhal condition of the throat, dust irritations or smoking—night coughing can and should be stopped! Nothing will pull you down faster, for it not only deprives you of needed sleep, but it tears you to pieces.

At the first sign of a cough, take good old "Piso's for Coughs." It does the five things necessary to stop a cough and repair the damage done. It checks the cough spasm, loosens the mucus, opens the air passages and soothes the inflamed tissues. At the same time, it has a tonic value that tends to build up what the cough tears down. Only Piso's supplies these five vital effects and it contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach. Safe to give even to babies. All druggists sell Piso's in 35c and 60c sizes. Be sure you get "Piso's for Coughs."—Adv.

PROTESTS ROAD TAX

Morrow County Man Says Assessments Are Not Fair.

MT. GILEAD, Feb. 4—Charles F. George of Harmony township has filed suit in the common pleas court through his attorney, T. B. Mateer, against the Morrow county commissioners and the auditor to prevent the collection of assessments made on the section of the Chesterville-Cardington road running east from State Route 61. The work was completed last summer.

The estimated cost of the road was $6,683.74 and the actual contracts price 17 per cent less or $4,992. George claims that the tax payers of Harmony township were burdened more than the taxpayers of Lincoln township by the manner in which the estimated assessments were changed when the commissioners approved the actual assessments.

OLD GOLD SPILLS THE BEANS IN BOSTON

Upsets rival brands with Sweeping Victory, in Ripley's latest Taste-Test

They held another "tea-party" at Boston the other day. "Down with the tyranny of habit!" was the cry. "Let's find out which cigarette really tastes the best."

From Back-Bay to the Fishing Docks, it was another Boston rebellion. Throwing brand prejudice overboard . . . more than a thousand Boston smokers compared the four leading cigarettes, with the brand names hidden.

They didn't know which was which. All they wanted was to pick out the best tasting cigarette.

At Lexington . . . modern Minute Men needed hardly a minute to give O. G. a 2 to 1 victory. At Bunker Hill, OLD GOLD'S cool, throat-easy quality completely routed the enemy.

"No taxation without representation" . . . said the Boston of long ago. "No throat-tax . . . and unlimited smoking joy" says the Boston of today.

THE NEW OLDSMOBILE is THE LOWEST PRICED CAR WITH the SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION

Among the many important new features now provided in Oldsmobile is the famous Syncro-Mesh transmission . . . and this is the first time this feature has ever been made available at a price so low.

The advantages offered by the Syncro-Mesh transmission make it one of the most desirable of present day fine-car features. It permits silent shifting through all gears . . . from low into second, from second to high, and from high back to second, as desired.

Gear-clashing is eliminated. And driving in traffic is easier, for the downward shift—from high into second—can be made without reducing car speed. This shift . . . so difficult with the ordinary transmission, and so useful for a quick burst of speed in traffic . . . is also a factor of safety and convenience when driving in mountainous country, where second gear is frequently employed for its braking effect on the car.

Further, the second gear in Oldsmobile's Syncro-Mesh transmission is a new quiet type—assuring smooth, swift acceleration which rivals high gear performance in quietness.

Until you have actually driven the new Oldsmobile and experienced for yourself the driving ease and flashing acceleration made possible by the Syncro-Mesh transmission, you cannot appreciate how much this modern fine car feature really adds to driving enjoyment.

Daily Proverb—"A man's folly is his worst foe and his discretion his best friend."

Either the wires or the type went wrong. The bill for drought relief voted by the Arkansas house called for $1,500,000, and not $15,000,000, as stated, which is just ten times more understandable.

The new apartment of Democratic National Committeeman John J. Raskob in a New York skyscraper is to have twenty-one rooms and nine baths. Democratic simplicity has become almost overpowering.

Postmaster General Brown favors planes over dirigibles for carrying overseas mail, holding that they are more dependable. The dependability of no form of air machine is as yet such as to make the world sit up and take notice.

The senate drys have defeated, at least temporarily, the plan to lift the ban off medicinal liquor. The fellows who like a little occasionally for what's ailing them may just as well retain their health for the timebeing.

But a few years ago all the airports in the United States could be counted upon the fingers of one hand. The first day of the present year there were 1,113, valued at $115,068,500, and a further expenditure of $20,225,000 is to be made this year. Really, the development of commercial flying in this country has been so speedy as to be almost incomprehensible.

Eight thousand dentists in convention in Chicago discuss what's best for teeth. An utter waste of time. They can listen in over the radio almost any night and learn of half a dozen pastes best for the teeth.

A London cable says that British exports of liquor to Canada and the West Indies declined twenty-one per cent. during 1930, owing to the tightening of the American dry law enforcement patrols, the exports to Canada having been almost cut in half during the last two years. The coast guard, it is worth recalling, is very largely, if not entirely, free from cheap political control.

Some of the Labor delegates to the Lancashire conference are demanding that Miss Margaret Bondfield, British minister of labor, resign, the charge being made that she attempted to force unemployed mill girls into domestic service under threat of losing the dole. Between working in a British mill and in domestic service, the advantage would seem largely with the latter, but, of course, drawing the dole without engaging in either line of work may have its advantages.

Break in Government Securities.

Some days ago, in voicing his opposition as secretary of the treasury to the proposal to cash the World war veterans' adjusted compensation certificates at this time, Mr. Mellon spoke of the demoralizing effect such a course would have on the federal securities market.

Had there been doubt that the secretary knew whereof he spoke, it could not have endured in the face of the effect the mere announcement of the proposal had upon that market. Point by point, by way of illustration, the market value of the four and a quarter Fourth Liberty bonds had gone up from the low figure to which they fell at the time of the Wall Street crash until they had reached 104.4. Within twenty-four hours after the announcement they had fallen to 103, a drop of 1⅛ cents. It was the worst break suffered in government securities in a decade. Nobody wanted to buy.

The magnitude of this break is apparent when consideration is given to the fact that price changes in government securities on many days do not amount to more than one or two thirty-seconds of a cent. Yet this particular break of which we speak amounted to thirty-six thirty-seconds.

The government has been borrowing away down under three per cent. In fact, the latest certificates offered and sold were nearer two per cent. than three. Yet we witness the market suffering a drop of a cent and an eighth in one day on bonds drawing four and a quarter per cent.

The question is: What per cent. would the government have to offer at this time to interest investors in a billion, or two billion, or three and a half billion dollars' worth of bonds?

Although this may be an argument against the issuing of a great volume of federal securities at this time, it is not intended as such. It is offered simply to point out how sensitive the securities market—even the government securities market—is to any condition or situation which investors may deem adverse to their interests. Nothing is scarcier than money, and this is particularly true of the money of the investor of small or ordinary means. Big money looks ahead to the future, but little money—money in small volume—considers only the present.

The Mitchell-Schall Controversy.

The controversy between Senator Schall and Attorney General Mitchell, as a result of the refusal of the latter to recommend to the President the appointment of Ernest Michel, of Minneapolis, to a federal judgeship vacancy in Minnesota, has reached a stage where Mr. Hoover can make the appointment only by repudiating his attorney general.

The appointment of Michel is recommended by the Minnesota senator and the entire Minnesota delegation in congress, but the attorney general, also a Minnesotan, not only refuses to recommend the Minneapolis attorney, but is also pressing his fight against him so hotly as to attract the attention of the entire country.

Attorney General Mitchell openly states that Michel is a lawyer of only fair ability and not outstanding in any way; that the greater part of his practice in recent years has been confined to personal injury cases; that he has not that all-around general knowledge of the law and experience which is desirable on the federal bench; that his firm has engaged openly and notoriously in methods of procuring and dealing with personal injury cases which have always been considered unprofessional, and he charges the appointment was recommended to cancel political debts.

"I have an abiding conviction," he wrote in a recent letter to the senator which has been given publication, "that with the great mass of right-thinking people who finally settle matters politically, no party or no administration helps itself by bartering judicial offices to pay political debts, or by making objectional judicial appointments for political reasons.

"For the foregoing reasons I regret that I can not conscientiously recommend this appointment to the President."

Senator Schall holds that the only way to determine Mr. Michel's fitness is to submit his name to the senate and permit the judiciary committee of that body to act as an "impartial tribunal."

Among the names of the seventeen members of the senate judiciary committee may be found those of Norris, of Nebraska; Borah, of Idaho; Blaine, of Wisconsin; Steiwer, of Oregon; Overman, of North Carolina; Ashurst, of Arizona; Walsh, of Montana; Caraway, of Arkansas; King, of Utah; Stephens, of Mississippi, and Dill, of Washington. It must have been at the expense of great self-control that Senator Schall referred to the senate judiciary committee as an "impartial tribunal" with this group representing eleven of its seventeen members. The fact that the charges against Mr. Michel were made by a member of the President's cabinet would be taken, in the present frame of mind of this group, as a recommendation. But all this is aside the mark.

It is not absolutely essential that a man be a great attorney to make a good judge. There have been many cases where very ordinary attorneys, but fair and honest ones, have made excellent jurists. But no matter what the legal qualifications of a man for the bench might be, he should not be given the appointment for the wiping out of political debts. If the attorney general is right in making his charges he should be supported. If he is not, his course in making the fight against Michel should be repudiated. But we would hate to see the senate judiciary committee sitting as an "impartial tribunal" for the determination of the matter. One may fairly vision what that tribunal's decision would be without being a mind reader.

Sweden is thrilled over the announcement that Prince Lennart, twenty-one, will give up his right of succession to the throne to marry Miss Karin Nisovandt, twenty, a commoner. Let's see? Who was it that said the world's well lost for love, or something like that?

The District of Columbia court of appeals has ruled that Congressman Edward E. Denison, of Illinois, must stand trial on the charge of violating the liquor law. Having traced a trunk from the union station in Washington to the congressman's office in the house office building, the dry agents were told by Mr. Denison that the didn't own it, which is as it should be. No congressman has any business owning a trunk in such a wretchedly leaky condition as it was.

The British are planning an air line from London over jungles, trackless bush and vast wastes to Cape Town, 8,000 miles away. We'll say that's an ambitious program all right. Even though it fails of execution, it takes courage for the Imperial airways to propose it.

The Star is in receipt of a communication on the proposed cashing of World war veterans' adjusted compensation certificates to which we are perfectly willing to give space if the writer will call and sign it, but under no circumstances will this paper print anonymous communications. If contributers will but appreciate this fact they may save themselves the time and trouble it takes them to write communications which, without the signatures of the writers, will go into the wastepaper basket.

The supreme court, a Washington dispatch states, has refused to hear Miss Nichols' appeal from the finding of the circuit court of appeals in her suit in which she claimed "The Cohens and the Kellys" was an infringement on her "Abie's Irish Rose." Who else doesn't want to see either of them?

Mrs. Blackledge has decided not to seek legal redress, for the present, at least, against her former friend, Mr. Litsinger, who accused her of complicity in the swindle plot by which he was touched for $50,000 out in Springfield, Illinois. As the days pass, the sidelights on that big faro game become more and more mysterious.

Alleging that Mrs. Mary Henderson, of Washington, is mentally incompetent properly to perform her duties and functions as a trustee under the wills of her husband and her son, a granddaughter asks the District of Columbia supreme court to prevent Mrs. Henderson from disposing of any of the real estate belonging to either estate, including the residence proffered to the government as a home for the vice president. Heirs are sometimes a menace to people of means with a generous streak in them.

NO TIME FOR SHAM BATTLES.

Editorial Opinion.

FRANCE'S YOUTHFUL PREMIER.

Youthful statesmen are rare in France where age has a traditional respect and almost invariably has the preferment in politics as in business. More conspicuous even than M. Tardieu as an exception to this rule is M. Pierre Laval, the new premier of France, whose government has just received a majority of fifty-four votes in the French chamber. Born the son of a butcher in the middle of France, this young lawyer has followed the usual rule of moving with his years from the Left towards the Right. He was senator in his early thirties. Now at the age of forty-seven he finds himself at the head of a government composed of virtually the same elements as the ministry of M. Tardieu. In its majority are certain unstable elements of the Left Center, but its main strength comes from the Right.

It will take unusual ability to hold this majority together against the undermining of the Socialists and radical Socialists. Their opposition will be implacable both on account of the inclusion of M. Tardieu in the ministry and because of M. Laval's own defection from the radical side on which he made his political debut.

To this task M. Laval brings an unusually winning personality already shown in the negotiations he conducted which ended the textile strike last fall. Courage and oratorial skill are also his. His own youth may be the deciding factor in his favor.

France has long needed new blood in her politics. She needs a new and younger school of statesmanship that will rise above the factional animosities engendered by the war and inspire the hard-working French people, grown weary of their older politicians. M. Laval, even more than M. Tardieu, may be the man corresponding to their hopes.—New York Herald Tribune.

"BALLING UP" THE RED CROSS.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, appeals to the "heart of the nation" as against the Red Cross. This inference from his eloquence is that the Red Cross has hardened not only its own heart, but that of the country, by refusing to let congress take charge of the relief of the drought sufferers and "ball up" its prompt and helpful operations. It is precisely the prospect of the long and dilatory processes of congressional management that is drying up what Senator Robinson calls the "impulses of the human heart." The country's heart has never failed to respond to the calls of the Red Cross in all emergencies, and it will not fail now, if congress will let the Red Cross alone. The Red Cross is the one agency that knows how to apply instant and effective relief. Congressional control or interference, with an extravagant appropriation, means nothing but pulling and hauling favoritism, delay, failure.

Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, undoubtedly knows more, along the practical side of relief, than all the senators put together. He says "The Red Cross has pledged itself to finish this job and it has funds enough to do it, even if it costs three times as much as we have estimated." The way of the Red Cross is the quick way, and the only telling way, of relief. It is as a purely voluntary organization, and not as an official administration or beneficiary of appropriations, that the Red Cross represents the great heart of the country. Congressional doles simply tend to mix this great agency of the country's beneficence up with politics. They would sound the death knell of its noble and effective service.—Boston Transcript.

Dinner Stories.

When a certain officer of the governor's staff died, there were some applicants for the post, and some were indecently impatient. While the dead colonel was awaiting burial one aspirant buttonholed the governor, asking:

"Would you object to my taking the place of the colonel?"

"Not at all," the governor replied tartly. "See the undertaker."

"Look here," said a weary listener, "suppose you tell us something you can't do, and by George, I'll undertake to do it myself."

"It's a go," was the cool reply. "I can't pay my bill."

Don't Neglect Nervous Disorders.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"Chorea," or "Saint Vitus' Dance," as it is commonly called, is a disease of the nervous system. It occurs in early school life, usually among girls between five and fifteen years of age.

The exact cause of this disease is not known. It is usually associated with acute rheumatic fever and heart disease. Over-pressure in school work is often an important factor.

Anemia in children must be considered as a factor, because most of the cases show very distinct blood changes. Chorea may follow as a complication of any of the infectious diseases. This is particularly true of scarlet fever and typhoid fever.

The disease comes on slowly. Quite often the child is accused merely of being "nervous." If at school it is noticed that he is having difficulty in writing or drawing. At home, the child is continually dropping things, has difficulty in feeding and dressing himself. At times the feet fail, and there is stumbling, with frequent falls and difficulty in climbing stairs. In other cases the spasm is in the face. Unconsciously, he makes grimaces, for which the poor child may be punished.

When the disease is fully developed the movements characteristic of this ailment are unmistakable. There are irregular and jerky motions, varrying from an occasional muscular twitching to almost constant agitation.

Excitement, fatigue and embarrassment, or any effort on the part of the child to control these movements, increases them. During sleep the movements disappear.

Unfortunately, these children are brought to the physician's attention weeks after the onset of the disease. Upon the first sign of suspicion of chorea the child should be taken to a doctor. If neglected the condition back of this disease may injure the heart.

Children with chorea should not be permitted to attend school. They should receive plenty of fresh air, nourishing foods and adequate rest. Such children should never be ridiculed or punished because of the movements they can not help. They can not control them, and, as I have said, any effort on their part to do so increases the movements.

In severe cases the rest treatment is imperative. This means placing the child in bed, where complete mental and physical rest may be obtained. This, perhaps, may be best accomplished in a hospital.

This disease has a tendency to recur, particularly in the spring months. Children who have had one attack should be watched carefully, particularly after they have returned to school. They should not be forced to do too much school work, and should be given frequent vacations.

What "Makes" Climate.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It is a singular fact that, in some countries and localities, weather and climate are words which are used interchangeably. This may roughly be said of such American states as Florida and California. Almost any day is supposed to serve as a fair specimen of the climate, as judged in year units. Clearly this condition holds truest near the equator. The further we diverge from the equator, the sharper grows the distinction between weather and climate. Climate must take account of all weathers; and it is difficult to assess the significance of climate in regions where the weather is very variable and the changes of season are sharply marked.

Of all the influences which go to make up what we call climate, the most powerful and pervasive is temperature. The very distribution of life on earth, and indeed throughout the cosmos, is controlled by temperature. There is a comparatively narrow zone within which the reath may move to secure the blessing of life. Shift the earth a little nearer to, or a little further from, the sun, and life would disappear—from the parching effects of heat or the chilling effects of cold.

The most vital of all factors in climate, then, is the heat received from the sun. The volume of the sun is about one million times that of the earth; and its distance from the earth is more than than 92,000,000 miles. Recent investigations, by Jeans, Eddington, Abbot and others, indicate that the surface temperature of the sun is about 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and that of the interior, at the center, say, is about 50,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

No adequate conception of such intense heat can be attained by the imagination. Every instant, radiant energy is pouring out from the sun and flooding space in all directions. Yet so many are the atmospheric forces which retard this powerful radiant energy that, according to scientific calculation, only a tiny fraction of it ever reaches the earth. Although all our life upon this planet depends upon solar radiation, only one two-billionth of it ever reaches us!

The amount of solar energy which reaches the outer surface of our atmosphere is called the "solar constant," and its value has been estimated to be about 135 millewatts per square centimeter of surface at right angles to the rays, or 194 calories per minute. The important factor in climate is not this average amount, but the relative amounts of heat received on different portions of the earth's surface.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

An Honor Lost to Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

From a short article written by Henry B. Carrington for the Old Ohio Historical Quarterly in 1888, it appears that the razing of the old American house in Columbus caused the disappearance of a room of much historical interest in the history of the Republican party in Ohio.

There was a convention of delegates representing anti-slavery people of all parties in the state, at Columbus, July 13, 1854, to take action looking to the fusion of this element into a political organization deemed practicable. A similar meeting was held on this date in Indiana and Michigan. It was the anniversary of the adoption of the ordinance of 1787, with its famous prohibition of slavery in the old territory.

The convention was held in Columbus in "Neil's New Hall," but the committee on resolutions, which was composed of the ruling figures in the convention, met at the noon hour in room 18 of the American house, and there transacted the principal business of the convention, and what they did was a little later adopted by the entire convention. Colonel Carrington, who was a designate from the Columbus district, represented it on this committee. Other noted men on the committee were Ben Eggleston, of Cincinnati; Joshua R. Giddings, Dr. Norton S. Townshend and Rufus P. Spalding.

Carrington was the law partner of William Dennison, later to become governor of the state. While the committee was still in session, Dennison came to the room and handed Carrington a dispatch stating that in Michigan the name Republican had been adopted as the name of the new party. Carrington suggested that it be adopted here, but Giddings, Townshend and others were opposed to adopting a name until it could be seen clearly that the fusion to oppose the extension of slavery west and north of the Missouri could be effected, and so Ohio lost to Michigan the honor of selecting the name of the party which still exists and whose foundations were then being laid.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Feb. 4—Writers, as well as actors, are often happy victims of the fabled lucky break. The other week an aspiring novice, after working five days completed seven pages of a magazine article and suddenly stuck smack in the middle of a sentence.

He tried vainly to carry on, but could not crack the spell of sterility. Finally he snatched the page from the machine with a mental vow to quit the game forever. On the verge of tearing up the manuscript, he, instead, placed it in an evelope and mailed it to his literary agent.

With the article he sent what he intended to be his literary swan song. It was a despairing line: "The very best I could do!" In a few days he received an urgent message to call on his agent at once. He went determined to resist any plea to "try it just once more." He was definitely through.

The agent was in a furore of excitement. He had forwarded the article to a weekly magazine and the editor had phoned his enthusiasm. The agent explained the editor liked especially the brevity—"the abrupt ending. That unfinished sentence!" The writer sat dazed.

And the agent gabbled on: "He wants you to write five more in the same tempo at once." There are many instances of such miracles. Anita Loos wrote "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" to amuse herself during a tedious convalescence. It was carelessly tossed in an old desk.

One day she gave it to a friend to read and afterward to tear up. Instead he rushed it to an editor—and the world knows the astonishing result. Will Rogers was a good comedian, but the one thing he couldn't do was write. "I can't," he drawled, "even spell."

For such reasons no one should tell another he can not write. Had many top notchers today heeded the advice of critics they would be punching time clocks in planing mills and spoke factories. Persistency wins in writing as well as in other endeavor.

A threadbare gesture on the stage these days is for a performer suddenly to resort to something grotesque like a tough aside when things become too pretentious. It's grand.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Feb. 4—Gilbert K. Chesterton, the famous British author, visited Washington recently to debate with Cosmo Hamilton on the question "Is Psychology a Curse?"

I discovered him the afternoon before the debate, arising from a sofa concealed behind some palms in a hotel lobby. He presented the appearance of an amiable lion, wearing informal morning clothes, a detective story magazine barefacedly protruding from the pocket of his coat.

He said that he read detective stories nearly all the time, and made no attempt to conceal the "vice." His own crime stories, he remarked, had been written largely for his own amusement, but the bad thing about writing detective stories yourself was that "you were the only person in the world who couldn't read them."

Chesterton has been lecturing in Notre Dame university during his stay in this country. In the university he enjoyed the status of professor. Obviously he was pleased about this, because he took the trouble to differentiate between a lecturer and a professor.

A lecturer, he said, has to wear formal evening dress and stand up. A professor may wear what he pleases and sit down.

Gleanings from a conversation with him which consumed the better part of an hour:

He has no doubt at all that the next war, if there should be one, will begin in or about Poland.

He would have concurred in the principles enunciated in the Pope's encyclical on matrimony even before he became a Roman Catholic.

He feels he is the last of the democrats and defines a liberal and democrat as a man who believes government is not a job for specialists, but is the normal function of every member of the community.

Charles Elmore Cropley, the youthful clerk of the supreme court of the United States, is faced with a knotty question—

Was Lincoln's hand on the Bible or upraised when he took the oath of office as president of the United States?

A portrait painter wants the information. Cropley was asked to supply it because a chief justice administered the oath.

It is nothing unusual for the supreme court clerk to get such requests. His office serves as a sort of clearing-house for historians and the curious interested in the court. It is an unusual day's mail that does not bring him some puzzling question. Four stenographers are kept busy in his office writing routine letters and answering queries.

Although he has spent several hours in research without avail on this particular request, he is not daunted.

The building is entirely of fireproof construction, is made of buff face brick with Bedford limestone trimming, and is two floors in height. The lower floor is covered with linoleum over concrete and maple flooring over concrete is used on the second floor.

There are 10 class room an assembly large enough to hold 150 pupils an office, teachers' rooms, two rest rooms on each floor.

The building is steam-heated with the unit system of ventilation being used

Although it is now one complete unit, the new building is so constructed that additions may be made to it when conditions warrant, Superintendent Bowman pointed out.

The school at present has a capacity of 400 pupils, although only 224 are enrolled. More will be transferred to the new unit next fall.

Plans for Enlargement

When the enrollment passes the present capacity, new wings can be built on either end of the structure, Bowman said, without disturbing in any way the present building Plans already are in existence for the erection of a north wing which would enclose an auditorium and gymnasium. The south wing, which probably would be built later, would make space for additional classrooms.

The building is located on a five-acre site, part of which in time will be used as a playground.

Pupils now located at the building formerly were the fourth, fifth and sixth grades at Forest Lawn and Vernon Heights schools, which were considerably relieved by the transfer since they have been crowded beyond capacity.

PRINCE OF WALES TO MASTER NEW TONGUE

London Professor Reports H. R. H. Is Rapidly Learning To Speak Spanish.

LONDON The Prince of Wales has made as much progress in his Spanish studies during the past three weeks as the average university student does in his first two terms, according to Dr Antonio Pastor, Cervantes professor of Spanish at London University

Dr. Pastor is helping the Prince "brush up" his Spanish in preparation for his visit to South America next spring

The Professor attributes the Prince's rapid progress largely to his extraordinary aptitude for concentration, his patience and his interest in the language

"If he comes up against a difficult point," Dr Pastor said in an interview, "he will spend an hour or more mastering the trouble, and once he has discovered where a mistake has been made he never forgets.

"The Prince's accent is very good and if he continues his study I believe he will speak better Spanish than he does French. His Royal Highness, of course, can speak German also, and possesses more than a few words of Hindustani."

While with his tutor the Prince speaks no word of English. "Even on the several trips we have made together in his airplane," said Dr. Pastor, "his Royal Highness always spoke in Spanish, or, if that did not convey his meaning he would break off into French."

Application of Right Tonic Aids in Healing Blemishes

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

SINCE tonics are proving more effectual every day in the treatment of the skin, it is wise to experiment with them until we find the formula that is best suited to our particular needs.

For example, there is no better way to clear the skin of enlarged pores than by the daily use of the proper skin tonic. Preparations used for remedial purposes, however, are in a different class from those used as preventives. Therefore, as soon as they have accomplished their specific purpose they should be set aside and a preventive, or preservative treatment should be substituted.

You will remember that we discussed our old stand-by, the boric acid and witch-hazel skin tonic not long ago in this column, and that some variations of the original formula were suggested. That preparation is preservative and preventive in action rather than corrective, although minor skin troubles usually disappear after its use.

But it isn't a corrective for excessively oily skin or for an aggravated case of enlarged pores, such as the tonic made from today's formula is. This tonic is made especially for the correction of excessively oily skin, enlarged pores, or both. And, incidentally, if the one condition is very marked, the other is present, or soon will be. Therefore, steps should be taken at once to correct the trouble.

To one quart of boiling water add one (1) heaping teaspoonful of boric acid crystals and one-quarter (¼) teaspoonful of powdered alum. Stir constantly until the powdered alum and boric acid crystals have dissolved. Set aside to cool.

When cold add one tablespoonful of tincture of plain benzoin.

Before Retiring

This tonic should be substituted for all others until the oily and enlarged pore condition is cleared up. Therefore, to one pint of the tonic made by the above formula add one pint of cold water, thus diluting half of it for use at one time, and keeping the other half at its original strength.

Keep these tonics in an air-tight container, and always shake well before using.

At night, before retiring wash the face thoroughly with soap and warm water. Rinse the skin with hot water and then cold. Dry it and then saturate a pad of cotton with the stronger solution, and pat this over the face, letting it dry naturally.

When cleansing the skin before applying make-up pat on the milder solution and let it dry thoroughly before blending your make-up

Largest Audience of Year Hears Talk on Sculpturing at Meeting of Federation

THE largest audience this year of women of Marion county Federated clubs and club patronesses turned out last night to hear Prof. Erwin F. Frey, Columbus sculptor and professor in the fine arts department at Ohio State university. The ballroom of Hotel Harding was filled to capacity for the program, which was sponsored by the art department of the federation under Mrs. Walter E. Hane chairman.

Preceding and following Prof. Frey's illustrated talk on sculpture, the women viewed a display of art work in the public schools, of club members and of the occupation section of the Sawyer Sanatorium, arranged on the mezzanine.

The school display, arranged by Miss Edith Keeler, director of art in the schools, presented the water-color work being done in her department, and also included two outstanding displays of student art, a collection of six marionettes by William Smith, arranged on a miniature stage, and a collection of modeling done by Charles Fairbanks Jr. Miss Keeler also displayed several of her own marionettes and other exhibits of her own work in the arts.

Prof. Frey's talk presented to his audience a step-by-step story of sculpturing from the modeling sticks and armature, the framework of all sculpturing, through the processes of water clay, character lining of a portrait bust, the casting in plaster, and finally, the process of casting in bronze, or working with limestone, sandstone, marble or granite.

His talk clearly and concisely illustrated these points to his audience in an instructive manner that threw light on the more difficult questions that confront the amateur or student of sculpture.

As an example in this step-by-step study, he used one of his best known, and most recent works, the bronze statue of Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University. To bring his talk more closely home, he also discussed the terra cotta figures used in decorating the A. I. U. tower in Columbus, and showed in the slides the interior of several work shops, including one in Cincinnati, and another of the Panama Pacific Exposition in 1915.

He brought to the attention of his audience the slowness of change in style of sculpture, due to the fact that sculpturing in itself is a long, slow process. The tendency today by some of the sculptors is towards bigger, fuller forms, he said. A group of his slides was concerned with some of the sculpturing of present-day artists.

On March 3 the federation is presenting Dr. Oscar M. Adam of Mansfield, sponsored by the education department of the federation of which Miss Pansy E. Ra... is chairman. Mrs. Mouser, president of the federation, announces an organ concert to be given Feb. 26 at First Presbyterian church.

Winners in the soap sculpturing contest follow:

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

BY HERBERT ADAMS

(Copyright, 1930, J. B. Lippincott Co.)

SYNOPSIS

Whose murderous hand sent a strange image fatally crashing Annabelle Querdling in her garden? Was it the result of the death threats the victim had received? Jimmie Russell, whom Evelyn Blake, Mrs. Querdling's niece, consulted previously, is aiding police in the case. Suspects include Green, the chauffeur, who has been given orders to leave, and Joe Allen, a discharged gardener. Evelyn's sister, Marjorie, tells how she and her aunt dead a few minutes after she and a friend, Dr. Richmond, had conversed with them in the garden. Evelyn and Janet Duckworth, her lover, say they were in the music room singing when Marjorie discovered the tragedy. Major Richmond, in the garden after the tragedy, does not satisfy the superintendent regarding his actions during the quarter hour preceding it.

• • •

CHAPTER 7

Shattered Romance

"THIS is insolent," fumed the major as Richmond indicated that his evasion was unsatisfactory. Suddenly the major stopped short and glared through his monocle. Then he started abruptly.

"Very well. I'll tell you. Miss Querdling had been a friend of mine for years and twice a week I called on her. Last Tuesday I asked her to marry me."

His glare at Jimmie brought only an encouraging nod.

"She declined. I took her refusal as a gentleman should. Then, last night, I started to walk over, though I was uncertain what to say to her. I suppose I walked slowly for that reason. It was devlish difficult."

"Then," said Superintendent Richmond, "that is the reason you waited on the lawn and did not go straight to the Dutch garden?"

"It is Now, poor soul, she is dead." His voice dropped. "If I was reluctant to tell you, even in confidence, you will appreciate my reason."

Richmond again asked the major if he had seen anyone in the garden. A negative answer made the question more specific.

"Did you, for instance, see a woman passing near the house, I mean, before Marjorie passed?"

"No, I saw nobody."

The major glared in the old manner as he left the room.

Richmond grinned. "Fancy his proposing to Miss Querdling!" He told Constable Roscoe to summon the chauffeur. "If anyone here did it, he seems the most likely," he explained, but at Jimmie's suggestion he decided to question the maid, Janet.

Pretty Janet Raynes, made nervous by the circumstances, was put in a defensive attitude by the superintendent's severity. She had been Miss Querdling's parlormaid for 18 months and had gone out of the house for only a short time on the night before, but had not gone near the Dutch garden.

She said that on the night before there had been only one caller, Mr. Duckworth, and that Miss Marjorie had told her to take some coffee to him and her sister in the young ladies' room. "I left the coffee and went out."

"Singing weren't they?" She nodded and Jimmie continued. "Did you go to the garden?"

"No, sir, not at first. The doctor came. He went out with Miss Marjorie."

"And you followed, or"—noting her hesitancy—"did you listen to the singing? Mr Duckworth sings well, doesn't he?"

She looked a little confused. "Yes, sir. He sings beautifully. I did listen for a few minutes."

"What was he singing?"

"I don't know. It's that song where he and the girl ride across the desert. You can hear the horse galloping.

"I know," laughed Jimmie. "A song called 'To the Desert.' What did you do then?

Janet said that she had gone out to tell Ted Green, the chauffeur about the song, but that he was not at the garage.

"All right," said Jimmie seriously. "The first time you went to the garage Ted wasn't there. So you went back to the house. What was the song this time?

Janet went rather red. "They was doing the same one over again."

"Then you went back to the garage and found Ted. "Is that right?"

She said that it was and that she had not asked him where he had been when she first called. After lingering a few minutes she explained that she had gone back to the house.

"What was the song this time?" Jimmie put in.

"He was still singing, but—" The girl looked doubtful. "It was about 'Roses in September.'"

"I know it. What happened then?"

"They started another song and stopped suddenly. Miss Marjorie had come. She said something about Aunt Annabelle and an accident. So I went and told Hetty. Then we heard all about it."

Ted, the chauffeur, she said, had received notice from Miss Querdling because he and Janet planned to marry.

"You—neither of you ever thought of punishing her for what she had done?"

"No, sir. She was Miss Querdling." The tone implied respect. She withdrew when the superintendent indicated he had no more questions to ask.

Before going out to the garage to see the chauffeur, they questioned Hetty Smith, the housemaid. She had attended to the bedrooms and had spent the rest of the evening reading in the kitchen. She had heard the singing, but had seen no one.

Ted Green, a big dark fellow, said that on the evening before he had been busy overhauling the car. Richmond asked if he had been working all evening and upon his repeating that he had, aroused his ire by saying, "Think again. I say you were not."

"That's a lie," shouted Green. "No one came until I was wanted to fetch the doctor." When Richmond insisted that some one had come for him and he had been absent, he corrected himself. "I was here every minute except when I went to the cottage to get a hammer Ben had borrowed."

"So, you admit you were not there all the time. What threatening language did you use to Miss Querdling?" Richmond asked.

"I didn't threaten. I only said, if she wanted to prevent folk marrying, she was a meddlesome old fool." Richmond pressed him closely, but there were no more contradictions. He said that in going for the doctor he followed the footpath just inside the links. He hesitated momentarily as Jimmie asked whether he had seen anyone.

"No, but there was a car off the path just inside the links."

"Another car!" exclaimed Richmond. "Whose could it have been?"

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's Outburst Results in a Moment Fraught with Drama—and Pathos

I HARDLY dared breathe at Lillian's outburst in my wonder as to how her husband would take it, and an involuntary glance at Dicky and my father showed in their faces the same horrified question which was in mine. We three knew the sensitiveness which lay beneath the bluff exterior of the big man and we also knew that nothing his wife could have said would have wounded him more than that challenge wrung from her tortured heart. "You have no right!"

No right to decide anything concerning the actions of the child whom he loved as tenderly as if she were his own and whose favor he had wooed with such humility and tact in the face of rebuffs which would have daunted a man less big of nature and strong of heart! I knew that Lillian did not mean it, that the nervous terror which was hers for her winsome young daughter had made her fling out her defiant answer to her husband's dictum—born of his jealous resentment at Marion's apparent disregard of her mother, and the resultant peril that she should never see her "roomie" again with his consent.

Harry Is Hard Hit

But Harry Underwood thought that she did mean what she had said, and for a fantastic instant it seemed to me that the big man had shrunken both in height and girth until he was only half his size. But though that illusion vanished as quickly as it had come, it was a man suddenly stricken, robbed of an incentive which had given him back manhood, wife and child, that stood before us.

There was no one of us in the closely knit little group on the veranda who did not know how the thought of his atonement to Lillian for his years of neglect of her, and indifference to her, had nerved him to the dangerous and heroic labors, unsponsored by any government, but of untold benefit to many, which had occupied him in the years intervening between his disappearance after the World War, and his dramatic return to us. Breathless with terror of his passing, we all had stood around him upon that horror-filled night in which he had foiled the plot against the life of Princess Olina, involving the foundations of more than one government, and had heard him moaning in delirium, "How about it, Lil? Will it do?

Stunned by the discovery that the "red-bearded man" whom we had so feared, was in reality Lillian's husband, revealed to us so dramatically when he was shot at the very moment of victory over the men he had thwarted, we yet had realized that Lillian's heart was irrevocably bound to her wanderer—something that all of us, save Dicky had doubted in the years which had again brought Robert Savarin, famous artist and ideal of her young girlhood, back into her life.

Love Wins Out

Every day of their life together since had strengthened that realization. Then, secure in his wife's love, the returned wanderer had set himself to win the love of his winsome young stepdaughter who loathed him and to whom he knew, in his own slangy parlance, he "always would have to bow second violin." To the delight of all of us, and especially that of his wife, he had succeeded royally, and no real father and daughter could be more fond of each other, or so it seemed to those of us who loved them and watched them so zealously.

And now Lillian had struck a blow at the very foundation of the structure she had helped to build with such delight and care and I wondered fearfully if the gap she had made could be filled again.

He spoke heavily at last, turning away from her and sitting down in the chair from which he had sprung at my statement that Marion had told Carolyn Brixton of the box with its secret compartment.

"Yes, Lillian, you have spoken only the truth. I have no 'right' to question Marion's actions — or yours."

She had been looking at him with strained, horrified eyes ever since her outburst, patently afraid to say anything until he had spoken. But now, regarding us as little as if we did not exist, she flung herself across the space between them and put her arms tightly about his neck. "I saw him put his hands up to her wrists as if impelled by something stronger than his volition, and attempt to loosen her clasp, but without hurting her he could not, and then she was sobbing, the tearing broken sobs of an utterly spent woman, and we heard her saying, "Harry! I did not mean it! You must know I didn't. You have every right! Forgive me! oh! forgive me! She shall do exactly as you wish."

It was a scene which none of us should have witnessed, but so great was our astonishment at Lillian's capitulation—we have deemed her pride and her poise impregnable—that for a second no one of us moved. Then Dicky, who for all his apparent indolent irresponsibility, is a tower of strength in any emergency calling for delicacy of treatment, said as casually as if no emotion had been permitted to intrude itself upon our conference:

"I don't agree with you people at all. To my mind the safest procedure would be to permit the intimacy between Marion and Carolyn to continue unchecked, only being sure that any information Marion may have to relay has been previously manufactured to suit us."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I AM always glad when Wednesday comes, because when that has got past I have got past the middle of the week and I am that much nearer to Saturday.

I let Jubilee down this morning and broke off a big icicle that was hanging from the eaves and sucked it till I began to get cold without my britches on, so then I laid it on my bed whilst I finished dressing, and then I went down and got the pail and went out and milked the dummed brutes and went in and fed my face and we all took our slays down to the pond and slid till school time, and when I was studying my geogrpaphy lesson and looking at a picture of Mammoth cave I remembered that I had left my icicle on my bed, so I didn't have my lesson so very good today.

I skun out for home when school let out, and Younies and Feeble and Maggie went with me, and when I got in the house I asted my mother if she found the icicle I laid on my bed, and she looked at me kinda funny and said she found where it had been, and Feeble looked crosseyed at me and said, "I suppose that's your story and you're going to stick to it." I told her I was going to send her a valentine if I could find her a mean enough one.

My grandfather had his fishline all unwound and he gave me a chunk of beeswax and, told me to hold it on the line till he wound it in, and he wound it in so fast that he burnt my thumb, and he gave me a quarter for some valentine and I said I would be willing to hold the rest of his lines with my other thumb, but he said that was all the change he had.

We went down and played and slid on the pond till it was almost dark and my mother came and called, me and when I went in the barn to milk the cows and went to go in the stall by the old cow I ran against their tails which were tied together by the long hairs and the old cow kicked at me when I skidded and kicked the pail out of my hand, and I had to cut the long hair off her tail to get the knot out, and that left the knot on the end of her dotter's tail. I didn't see who done it, but some of these days I will catch the Lost Bag of Tripe up to some of his funny business and then I'll get arrested for what I do to him.

There is is always a cherry stone left in cherry pie and we had cherry pie for supper and my father bit on the stone and we all heard it crack, and we all looked at him, but I didn't dast to grin. My mother looked sorry, but my father looked mad and didn't speak to her before I went to bed and he sent me to bed early. I will not be that kind of a man when I grow up. I wouldn't get mad if I hit on a crokay ball. But Jubilee I always glad when I go to bed ... so there was that much ...
